As a observer of the Microsoft anti-trust litigation, I must tell you that as a consumer, I have never been harmed by Microsoft. The continuous actions of a few State AGs seems to be more about them getting good press to push their own personal political agenda that to look out for consumers.

Our Country is in a recession, we need companies like Microsoft to innovate so we can increase productivity and the value of American products. I am certainly not an expert but it would seem to me that the current anti-trust laws were enacted to address the smoke stack industries in a non-global marketplace. What seems obvious to the average person on the stress apparent escapes the politicians and the high priced political appointees.

If the Netscape's of the world cannot compete let them get the hell out of the way. It seems that the government and the some of the states want to decrease competition and innovation by restricting Microsoft. How stupid.
